

BRAZOS HERITAGE SOCIETY DAY TRIP to the LIENDO PLANTATION CIVIL WAR REENACTMENT WEEKEND

The echoing thunder of canon fire shattered the peace of a beautiful autumn day, concussions pulsing through the ground like minor earthquakes.

More shots followed in increasing tempo, punctuated by the lighter bark of mortars. Black powder rifle volleys fired deadly 70 mm lead balls across the open field at gray-clad soldiers huddled behind their redoubt. The rifles sounded like pop guns against the deeper rumble of the artillery. Cavalry wheeled lathered horses to catch saber against saber in a desperate attempt to keep life and limb together. Between the massed lines, soldiers began to crumble and fall into the warm earth... The Civil War had arrived in Texas. (Hilliard, 2013)
